

Answer the capitalist state

SUPPORT NUM: ORGANISE THE GENERAL STRIKE

THE SEIZURE of the assets of the National Union of Mineworkers by the Tory judiciary is aimed at smashing the union and starving the miners and their families into total submission.

It is a ruthless and blatant demonstration of the Bonapartist capitalist state dictatorship against the basic democratic rights of the working class.

If it succeeds, then the Thatcher regime will set about destroying the rest of the trade unions, tearing up hard-won basic democratic rights and imposing a slave labour economy.

The whole working class must take up the gauntlet flung down by Mr Justice Nicholls on behalf of the Thatcher regime.

Answer

There is a short and direct answer to the latest attack of the Bonapartist-Thatcherite state.

The cry must go out from every trade union branch, shop stewards' committee, trades council and miners' support group:

ORGANISE the General Strike!
All those unions who say they support the miners must come out on strike with the miners at once!

BRING the Bonapartist Thatcher dictatorship down!

CAMPAIGN for a Workers Revolutionary Government!

NOT PROTESTS, not petitions, not prayers — but the struggle for workers' power!

While police rampage through mining communities like Denby Grange, the absolute judiciary is rampaging through the unions determined to bankrupt them and force the NUM to purge its contempt of court and accept unconditionally the Thatcher Bonapartist yoke.

The NUM must not be allowed to suffer the fate of the NGA — forced to purge its contempt on the insistence of the TUC leaders — or the GCHQ unions, banned because of the TUC's refusal to defend the NGA and defy the anti-union laws.

No trade unionist can ignore the menacing content of Nicholls' decision. When sequestration fails to break the will of the miners, the judges will be back to jail Arthur Scargill, the NUM executive and then area leaders.

In fact further proceedings are threatened under the terms of the September 28 ruling which directed the Yorkshire area to hold regular branch meetings and to hold scheduled branch elections. Not satisfied with this, the reactionary duo of Taylor and Foulstone will soon return to court and force the union to hold a national ballot — and impose further fines.

Some miners' leaders have maintained that sequestration will not affect area funds. But we warn against undue optimism. The judges and their scab 'Silver Birch' allies will not stop at the national funds — the only defence is the organisation of the working class in an indefinite General Strike against the Tory government and the state.

The Tory ruling class will not compromise nor relent. They represent an accumulated arsenal of oppressive state weaponry which is directed at the very heart of the working class — i.e. not the TUC and its wretched General Council, but the NUM and its leadership.

The intensity and scope of the state's attack is directly determined by the weight of the world imperialist crisis and the utterly hopeless situation of British imperialism.

Weapon

The history of the eight months of the miners' strike has shown that far from seeking a negotiated solution the Tories, driven by the slump and the loss of markets and empire, have decided on an industrial and political war against the NUM and the working class. Their chief weapon is the capitalist state's repressive machinery.

To destroy the NUM is their central strategic aim in the war to destroy the whole working class.

No worker, no trade unionist, can ignore or deny that after this Thursday's verdict in the High Court. To do so would be to disarm the working class and invite a massive defeat.

Thursday's events in the High Court are a damning indictment of the NACODS agreement, cooked up at the ACAS funeral parlour for fighting trade unionists by Labour leaders Kinnock and Orme in collaboration with TUC leaders Willis, Basnett and Buckton.

Chancellor Nigel Lawson's recent statement that he can do nothing for the 4 million unemployed and the provocative sacking of all NGA members at 'The Sun' only underlines the uncompromising arrogance and ruthlessness of the hand of the capitalist state.

Lawson's statement had been preceded by Home Secretary Leon Brittan's fulsome support for the police on the picket lines and his menacing statement that there would be unlimited sentences on union pickets.

These statements and actions underline again and again the truth and burning relevance of the Marxist-Leninist analysis of the capitalist state as an organ of class rule which cannot be reformed or made subservient to parliament or local government.

The Bonapartist state, as pre-war Germany showed, is not an end in itself, but the transition to military-police and fascist dictatorship.

To change the decision of Justice Nicholls it is necessary to organise the General Strike and mobilise the working class to overthrow the capitalist state. Only in this way can our basic democratic rights be secured.

It means that the defence of basic democratic rights, including trade union rights, has become inseparably connected with the struggle for the socialist revolution and workers' power.

The Workers Revolutionary Party and All Trades Unions Alliance completely endorse the policy of Arthur Scargill, his courageous defiance of the state and his stubborn defence of the NUM, the mining industry and its communities from Tory vandalism.

Inspired

His steadfast opposition to the Thatcher regime, the Tory press and the NCB has not only inspired millions, but it has also revealed in all its starkness the nature of the reformist manoeuvres of the Stalinists in the docks and the retreats of the T&GWU and G&MWU leaders in the steel, transport and power industries.

Above all Scargill has shown up the TUC for the conniving, knee-crooking bureaucrats that they are. For eight and a half months they have dodged and wriggled to avoid supporting fully the miners' struggle.

Now they face the moment of truth. As 'The Miner' put it, they can either 'put up or shut up'.

The TUC decision of Brighton 1984 instructing all their members to observe miners' picket lines and to refuse to handle blacked coal and oil is inadequate.

With the Tory state now in the process of destroying the Campaign of hostility' by 'Star'

McGAHEY

THE PEOPLE'S Press Printing Society, the co-operative that owns the 'Morning Star', is being used in a 'campaign of hostility' against the Communist Party, according to NUM vice president Mick McGahey.

He makes the charge in a letter to the Stalinist daily which has been suppressed by editor Tony Chater.

McGahey wrote the letter earlier this week in reply to a series of bitter accusations against the Communist Party leadership made by Ray Alderson, vice-president of the Civil and Public Services Association (CPSA).

McGahey and Alderson,

McGAHEY LETTER CLAIMS

BY ALEX MITCHELL

both leading Stalinists in the trade unions, are also members of the TUC General Council.

The NUM vice president's letter to the 'Morning Star' said: 'When Ray Alderson ('Morning Star', October 22) describes the Communist Party's efforts to restore the previous relationship with the PPPS as "an act of betrayal" and a diversion from the effort to support the miners, he does not speak for Communist miners I know.

'They understand very well that it is the destruction of the links between the party and the PPPS, for which the PPPS management committee is responsible, which places in jeopardy the future of the "Morning Star" and its capacity to fight for the miners.

'It would be grossly irresponsible, and a real betrayal, if the party did not do all in its power to prevent the hi-jacking of the "Morning Star" away from the party.

'The most charitable explanation of Ray's outburst is that he has not closely followed the course of events since the management committee described the party as "a body outside the PPPS" some 18 months ago, and therefore does not understand that it is the actions of the management committee and editors which have caused the division.

'These actions have resulted in the PPPS being used in a campaign of hostility to the party — a disastrous situation never contemplated by the party leaders who set up the PPPS nearly 40 years ago.

'It is to put an end to this unprecedented rift that the Special General Meeting has been requisitioned by 1,300 shareholders, with the support of the party.

'Despite the attempts by the management committee to find pretexts for denying the shareholders their rights, I am sure that they will exercise them in the interests of both the paper and the party.'

The first of the special shareholders' meetings took place last night in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Nottingham and Sheffield. Further meetings will be held today (Cardiff), tomorrow (Glasgow) and on Monday (Bristol).

Resolutions before shareholders call for the replacement of editor Tony Chater and his assistant David Whitfield and the ousting of five management committee members, including Tass general secretary Ken Gill, also a member of the TUC General Council.

The results of the shareholders' ballot will be known by the middle of next week.

The Chater group at the 'Morning Star', supported by the 'Straight Left' faction, is boycotting the shareholders' meeting claiming that it is out of order.

Redgrave case in Boston

Orchestra chief raised 'violence'

REDGRAVE

BOSTON — Actress Vanessa Redgrave told the anti-blacklisting trial against the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Thursday she had been asked by the artistic director 'What will you do if you are shot?'

William P. Brunell was questioning her in a transatlantic telephone call about possible disruption of a concert she was to give with the orchestra.

Rights

Redgrave, a member of the Central Committee of the Workers Revolutionary Party, is suing the BSO for violating her civil rights by terminating her contract because of her political beliefs.

In her evidence she described in detail her three-decade career, spanning all aspects of the performing arts, theatre, dance, film and television.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

When asked whether any of her performances was 'disrupted' Redgrave responded with a forceful and unequivocal 'No'.

Asked by her attorney how she had reacted to news from her agent that the orchestra would pay her $31,000 for five performances, Redgrave said: 'I told them how thrilled I was that I was going to appear with them.'

But she said in the April 1, 1982, call to London, Brunell, the BSO's artistic director, raised questions about possible disruption of the concert and even of life-threatening violence.

The 47-year-old actress said Brunell told her the orchestra had expected opposition to her performance. 'But nothing like this.'

She said that at one point in the conversation Brunell asked: 'What will you do if you are shot?'

'And I thought that was a bit excessive,' she said. 'Because, what can you do?'

Redgrave testified that Brunell had given no indication that the concert was to be cancelled. She said her agent, John Gaynes, told her several hours later of the cancellation.

Deal

Earlier in the hearing, the BSO's manager, Thomas Morris, was forced to admit that the BSO backed out of a deal with the actress, who was set to narrate the famous oratorio, 'Oedipus Rex'.

Morris attempted to justify the move by claiming that the cancellation of Redgrave's contract was necessary for the safety and well-being of the orchestra.

Under questioning by Redgrave's lawyer, Daniel Kornstein, Morris was unable to cite any direct threat of violence from persons who voiced opposition to Redgrave's appearance, however.

Morris's testimony was interrupted by the defence on Wednesday to present

Seiji Ozawa, the BSO's music director, as a witness for the defence.

Ozawa, who claims he made the decision to cancel Redgrave as the narrator of Stravinsky's 'Oedipus Rex' after listening to reports from Morris and other BSO officials, said he did not want anyone 'controversial' performing in one of his concerts.

Ozawa, claiming to have never heard of Redgrave before this incident, said that BSO management had told him that the performance of 'Oedipus Rex' might be disrupted with 'boos' and 'stinkbombs' and that Redgrave might interrupt her narration to make a political speech.

Earlier in the week Kornstein introduced the deposition testimony of a BSO trustee, Irving Rabb, who said that he had told Morris to 'get out of the Redgrave contract' or else the BSO would lose 'financial support from the Jewish community'.

REGISTERED dockers in Liverpool have snubbed the final stages of the employers' drive to find 448 volunteers for redundancy at up to a record £25,000 severance, with only half the number required volunteering.

NUM, mere 'solidarity' on the picket line is not enough. The question is whether there is going to be an NUM and whether trade unions as independent organisations of the working class will continue to exist in this country.

Thatcher's Bonapartist state has provoked this political confrontation against the NUM and the whole of the working class. We say:

Defend the NUM!

All unions committed to support the miners must strike indefinitely now!

Organise the General Strike!

Down with Thatcher's Bonapartist regime!

Forward to a Workers Revolutionary Government!

ARAFAT PLANE SABOTAGED

Death attempt

PALESTINE Liberation Organisation chairman Yassir Arafat has survived an assassination attempt by opponents who sabotaged parts of a plane taking him from North Yemen to Iraq.

Arafat told the Arab weekly 'at-Tadamon' that his plane developed serious technical problems shortly after taking off from Sanaa airport on October 19.

One of the wheels exploded, forcing the plane to make an emergency landing.

The magazine quoted Arafat as saying there was definitely a plot to kill him. When asked who was behind it, he replied: 'The enemy and some brothers are participating in the conspiracy. They want to kill me because they are afraid that I will disclose their secrets.'

The magazine said United Arab Emirates President Sheikh Zaid Bin Sultan al-Nahayan sent a special plane to enable the PLO chairman to continue his tour of Gulf states.

Arafat also spoke of actions which the PLO was expected to launch in its fight against Israel.

'We are going to astonish the world with new and unexpected operations,' he said but did not elaborate.

At a press conference in Amman yesterday Arafat said the long-delayed meeting of the Palestine National Council (PNC) should take place before the end of next month.

TORY MP Eldon Griffiths yesterday made an 11th-hour appeal to the government not to accept a proposal which — if added as an amendment to the Police and Criminal Evidence Bill — will make racial discrimination a specific disciplinary offence.

THE BISHOP of Durham Dr David Jenkins says in a BBC radio programme tomorrow that Christ's resurrection was a 'conjuring trick with bones'. He says: 'You can't have a religious view about reality and another view about daily life.'

THE 'SUN' newspaper was due to be printed last night after two days off the streets, but it is not known if all the National Graphical Association members sacked on Wednesday over picture production have been reinstated.

BANKS in the United States lowered their prime lending rates yesterday to 12 per cent from 12½ per cent, citing a decline in their costs of borrowing money. It was the second major round of cuts this month.

ARAFAT

'It has become binding on us to convene it due to a decision taken by about half the (PNC) members in Tunis last week,' he said.

'We have received invitations from King Hussein of Jordan and President Saddam Hussein of Iraq. At the same time, we are waiting for Algeria's decision in the next few days, after which matters will be clarified and a decision can be made as to the venue.'

Kinnock picks his team

LABOUR leader Neil Kinnock last night stripped Peter Shore of his post as Shadow spokesman on Trade and Industry, though Shore remains the Shadow Leader of the House.

John Smith gets the industry job, in a move that many MPs see as a criticism of Shore's performance throughout the last 12 months.

Kinnock's announcement of the Shadow Cabinet portfolios less than 24 hours after the election results were announced came as a surprise at Westminster.

Promotion

Former Transport spokesman John Prescott receives promotion to Shadow Employment spokesman.

Denzil Davies moves up from No.2 in defence to Shadow Defence secretary, taking over from John Silkin, who stood down from the Shadow Cabinet.

Donald Dewar, the other newcomer, will remain as Shadow Scottish secretary, a post he held while outside the elected Shadow Cabinet.

BT boost

BRITISH Telecom directors will get substantial increases in salaries when the corporation is privatised next month.

Sir George Jefferson, chairman of BT and currently earning £94,000 a year, would not specify the amount of the rises.

Present salaries range from £30,000 to £70,000, with most earning more than £60,000. Jefferson yesterday announced details of the sale of 51 per cent of the shares in BT.

Their firm stand must be supported by trade unionists everywhere. This is not a time for

Derbys. police chief to quit

THE suspended Chief Constable of Derbyshire, Alf Parrish, has asked to retire on medical grounds, his solicitor disclosed last night.

A meeting of the Derbyshire police committee called to discuss his future had earlier broken up without any decision after six hours.

Solicitor Arthur Willis said Parrish had 'put forward a complete answer' to allegations of financial irregularities and unauthorised spending.

Parrish did not attend the committee meeting on the orders of his doctor.

He was suspended in June over alleged financial irregularities.

He was alleged to have authorised £28,000 to be spent on refurbishing his office without approval.

Other claims included the spending of £1,000 on a burglar alarm at his home, expenses claimed while on official business, and the use of his office car for private trips.

Soviet scientist joins tour

AN EMINENT Soviet physicist is to join three leading American scientists on a nationwide speaking tour about the devastating effects of a 'nuclear winter' on civilisation.

The 11-city tour starts on November 5 and Georgiy Golitsyn, head of the laboratory at the USSR Academy's Institute of Atmospheric Physics, will join Professor Paul Ehrlich and Dr Anne Ehrlich from Stanford University, and Dr Richard Turco.

The nuclear winter effect — highlighted recently by the BBC programme 'On the Eighth Day' — is caused by clouds of dust and debris thrown up into the atmosphere after a nuclear attack.

The result would be devastating, blotting out the sun and causing an artificial winter which could kill people, crops and animals.

Train crash charge changed

TRAIN driver Peter Allen whose express train crashed at Morpeth, Northumberland, in June will face a single charge at his Crown Court trial.

Allen, 58, made a brief appearance before Morpeth magistrates yesterday when a charge under the 1961 Railways Act of endangering passengers by exceeding the speed limit was withdrawn at the request of James England, representing the Director of Public Prosecutions.

But Allen was committed to Crown Court charged with endangering safety through negligence under the Offences Against the Person Act.

Allen, of North Berwick, Lothian, who was represented by Anthony Rust, was granted unconditional bail.

Students link anti-NF and solidarity moves

Campus row on miners' cash

BY PENNY BLOOR

EIGHT out of 11 members of the National Union of Students' executive at the North London Polytechnic resigned yesterday after refusing to sign a cheque to donate £1,000 to the miners' strike fund.

A meeting of over 500 students had instructed them to make the donation. The same meeting also voted — against the wish of the executive members — to carry on their fight against the continued attendance at the polytechnic by National Front student organiser Patrick Harrington.

own normal lectures because of the scale of protection laid on for Harrington.

And they are bitter that the NUS leadership has turned its back on their campaign.

Some of them told News Line: 'The question of the miners and Harrington is very much connected. There are obvious links on the question of ultra-vires because both issues are outside the law.'

'The other basic issue is that just like riot police are being used to escort scabs, riot police are being used to escort Harrington into North London Polytechnic.'

The students are determined to continue their campaign.

Threat

'This polytechnic is a multi-racial institution, supposedly run in accordance with the ILEA anti-racist guidelines,' they pointed out in a press statement. 'As such the presence of Patrick Harrington on campus is a threat to the physical and academic freedoms of all students at this polytechnic.'

'He is the national student organiser for the National Front and therefore exclusively concerned with the promotion of NF policies within colleges and universities throughout the country.'

The students are demanding that Harrington be taught off campus, the introduction of an effective anti-racist policy and the exclusion of active racists from the campuses.

They also want the directorate to speak directly to the students about their actions over Harrington.

JOSEPH JUSTIFIES STUDENT CASH CUTS

TORY Education Secretary Sir Keith Joseph yesterday defended cuts made by the government so far and added that universities and institutions should look to the private sector for more funds in the future.

Speaking in the first full parliamentary debate on higher education since 1981, Joseph warned: 'I get the impression that there is widespread recognition that the days of relatively easy public funding are over for quite a long time.'

He said he doubted that Labour would give 'an unqualified commitment to restore every penny of every cut by this government and its predecessor'.

Joseph said the Tory view was that 'it will be wise for the universities, in particular, and the institutions of higher education to inch towards a larger contribution of their funds from the private sector'.

Labour's shadow education secretary Giles Radice protested that, at a time when student numbers were rising, funds were being cut and thousands of unqualified young people were being turned away.

He challenged Joseph on reports that the minimum student grant — now at £205 a year — is to be abolished.

Joseph refused to be drawn, saying talks on the matter between his Department and the Treasury were 'sacrosanct' until an announcement was made.

But Radice told him: 'It is interesting that you haven't denied the minimum grant is going to be abolished.' The grant was cut last year from £410.

Mandate

A spokesman for the national union said yesterday that if students mandate their leaders at a branch meeting to pay out money to such a cause from cash earned from things like bars, entertainments and games machines, they could escape legal action.

But if the money comes from the union's general funds, it is in breach of the 'ultra-vires' laws.

Lectures

Picketing at the polytechnic continued yesterday morning when Harrington turned up for lectures at the Marlborough site, to which he has been transferred. Police surrounded students, hemming them against a wall behind barricades to prevent them blocking Harrington's entrance.

No students are allowed to enter the building without showing identification. Many were angered that they could not get to their

Holloway prison protest

ABOUT 40 women picketed the Home Office yesterday and handed in a letter to Leon Brittan, the Home Secretary, demanding an immediate inquiry into the running of the C1 psychiatric unit at Holloway prison.

Most of the inmates at the unit, say the women, should not be there in the first place, many of them being mentally disturbed or ill.

And they condemned the inhumane treatment of the prisoners inside the unit. Prisoners are kept locked up in their cells for 23 hours a day, and there have been a disturbing number of deaths at the prison in the recent past.

Stranded holiday-makers face bills

PACKAGE holidaymakers now face unexpected hotel bills following the collapse of the Budget travel firm.

The Civil Aviation Authority, which is administering the £3 million bond that Budget had to provide as a guarantee against it going bankrupt, says it would meet the cost of such bills.

Luggage

'Sometimes hotels have refused to release people's luggage until the bill has been paid,' said a spokesman. 'Our advice is that people should pay the bill, and we will refund them out of the Bond money.'

In Tenerife, management at the Apartamentos Valle Luz has ordered holidaymakers to pay their bills in the wake of news that Budget and a subsidiary firm, Excel, had ceased trading.

Families were told yesterday that money to pay the bills of Budget customers had been teleaxed to Madrid, but that only a deposit had been promised towards the Excel customers' bills.

'They say that just isn't acceptable, and that we must pay 42,000 pesetas — about £200 — to stay in our apartment for the second week of our holiday,' said Ronald Burdis, a holidaymaker from Newcastle.

ETHIOPIAN officials acknowledged yesterday that the country was importing large shipments of Scottish whisky at a time of massive famine. An embassy spokesman in London said the Moscow-backed military regime had decided to break an official ban on luxury imports to beat a rocketing black market.

It is reported that as much as 500,000 bottles of whisky, with a market value of some £3 million, has been shipped to Ethiopia. British charities yesterday reported raising £5 million from the public since Tuesday when harrowing scenes of death and starvation were shown on BBC TV.

Grenada throws out observer

THE AMERICAN-appointed governor of Grenada has thrown out a British lawyer sent to observe the trial of those accused of murdering the island's former Prime Minister.

Richard Allfrey was planning to watch the trial on behalf of the London-based Committee for Human Rights in Grenada.

But he was held for five hours at Grenada's immigration office without explanation and finally ordered to leave the island by Saturday, he said.

'They have given me absolutely no reason whatsoever,' he said by telephone on BBC Radio.

'They aren't required to under the law prevailing in Grenada, and I have no right of appeal or recourse to Grenadan courts to challenge the decision.'

'If I don't leave I shall be arrested and held as an undesirable alien, and kept in custody.'

Allfrey, who works with civil rights lawyer Lord Gifford, QC, said his ordeal began when he was at the house he intended to use while the trial was on.

'Four men suddenly emerged from a car and told me to accompany them to the immigration office in St George's, the capital of Grenada.'

'When I arrived I spent some five hours at the office.'

WEATHER

ALL areas will have sunny intervals to start, but it will become more cloudy from the west and rain will spread into northern Ireland, Wales and southwest England during the afternoon and into other southern and western parts later. Temperatures will be near normal.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday: Rain in the west will spread to all parts followed by brighter showery weather. Near normal temperatures, windy at times.

CITIES FALL INTO POVERTY

WASHINGTON — Poverty in big US cities is on the increase, according to a Congressional study just released.

The study, published by a joint economic sub-committee just two weeks before the November 6 election, is highly critical of the Reagan Administration's urban policy.

'Poverty is increasing in almost all of the cities we examined', Democratic Congressman Parren Mitchell, chairman of the sub-committee, told a news conference.

He blamed Reagan for the situation along with some Congressmen who went along with his cuts in social programmes and other measures to cut federal spending.

The Administration has denied the cuts hurt the very poor who rely on government handouts. It also argues that economic recovery accompanied by a slowdown in inflation has helped the poor, who were badly hit by the recession and surging prices.

'No major part of the Administration's purported urban policy targets cities specifically and directly', Mitchell said, adding: 'Instead the Administration has the view that what's good for the economy is good for cities.'

The report said that some 500,000 people were homeless in the United States and lived in urban or nearby suburban ghettos.

'We have American-style apartheid housing,' Mitchell said. Black unemployment is far higher than that of whites, with black teenage joblessness near the 50 per cent mark, the report said.

● In Grand Island, Nebraska, a debt-ridden farmer has been shot dead after donning commando garb and opening fire on police trying to seize his assets.

Arthur Kirk, 49, who told a newspaper this week that sheriffs should not do the banks' dirty work, was killed by police marksmen sent to take him into custody on charges of resisting arrest with a dangerous weapon.

Police arrived at Kirk's 240-acre farm in central Nebraska on Tuesday to deliver papers freezing $100,000 worth of his crops, livestock and other assets which secured a bank loan he held.

'During the initial confrontation he pointed a gun at the head of one of the officers and he was then told he was under arrest,' the official said. Kirk refused to surrender and officers returned several hours later with an arrest warrant.

Kirk, wearing a gas mask, helmet and night fighting grease paint, was running from his house to a windmill he had fortified with sandbags when he was shot. Police said the marksmen opened fire after Kirk shot at them with an automatic weapon.

KY — denies being a gang chieftain

Ky named in crime probe

NEW YORK — A hooded witness before the President's Commission on Organised Crime named former South Vietnamese premier Nguyen Cao Ky yesterday as the leader of four gangs that prey on Vietnamese refugees in the United States.

Ky bitterly denounced the charge as a lie.

The witness, identified only as an ex-member of one of the gangs, told a Commission hearing in New York that he was informed of Ky's leadership role by one of his bosses.

He did not offer other evidence than to say Ky's alleged involvement was general knowledge in the Vietnamese community.

Ky, 53, who now lives in Huntington Beach, California, said: 'The hooded witness who made these allegations is probably a Communist trying to destroy the Vietnamese community.'

Symbol

'After all, I am a symbol of the anti-communist movement. That is why I am singled out. I am not a gang chieftain. The whole thing is ridiculous. It's the same old story, the same old accusations,' he added.

Ky, who owns a liquor store, filed last January for bankruptcy, reporting debts of $615,000.

A spokesman for the Commission said its hearings in New York were to determine the extent of Asian criminal activity in the United States and that the Commission would be very willing to have Ky testify on the allegation made yesterday.

Extortion

The hooded witness said the four gangs were involved in extortion and robbery and were planning to get involved in narcotics.

He added that the gangs mainly preyed on Vietnamese refugees and that former generals of the South Vietnamese army played key roles in the gangs.

Ky has been living in the United States since the collapse of the South Vietnamese regime in 1975.

A Commission spokesman said other witnesses testified that the Vietnamese gang specialised in extortion and there had been several murders including that of a Vietnamese journalist.

The four gangs were named as the Fishermen in Houston, the Frogmen in Los Angeles, the Black Eagles in San Francisco and the Eagle 7 in Chicago.

Pledge to halt repayments

LIMA — A leading candidate in presidential elections due next year has vowed to declare a moratorium on Peru's £13 billion foreign debt if elected.

He is Alan Garcia, candidate for the Aprista Party (PAP) which reaped the most votes in municipal elections last November.

He told a news conference he would not impose sacrifices on Peruvians in order to repay the debt.

'We are going to negotiate a moratorium without hiding. One must tell the world the truth, that one cannot pay,' he said. 'One cannot lead a nation to misery for the sake of displaying the label of a good payer.'

'I am sure nobody will be able to put a foot on the neck of Peruvians and the Latin Americans to force us to satisfy the unyielding interests of international financial capital,' Garcia added.

The PAP, which collected 33.19 per cent of votes in the municipal elections, is tipped by local pollsters to win the presidential vote on April 14.

Marcos under fire

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

MANILA — Philippine opposition leaders yesterday mounted a fresh attack on President Ferdinand Marcos, saying he had virtually absolved military chief General Fabian Ver of his role in the murder of former Senator Benigno Aquino.

Most members of a commission which investigated the murder said this week that Ver, two lower-ranking generals, 22 soldiers and a businessman were 'indictable for the premeditated killing'.

The chairman of the opposition POP-Laban party, Aquilino Pimentel, said remarks by Marcos made 'impossible any trial of Ver that will be fair to the people'.

Letter

He was referring to Marcos's comments in a letter to Ver that the commission's findings were 'fraught with doubt and great contradictions of opinion and testimony'.

Marcos was replying to Ver's written request for a leave of absence as armed forces chief of staff to defend himself. Ver has denied any role in the conspiracy to kill Aquino, who was shot dead at Manila airport in August last year.

Laban, a party founded by Aquino which later merged with the Philippine Democratic Party (PDP), also criticised the regime's appointment of three new judges to the special courts last week.

It said they were Marcos appointees who 'must still be overwhelmed by a sense of gratitude'.

A panel of government lawyers yesterday took charge of the evidence collected by the commission to decide whether there was a case for prosecution against those named in the report. If they decide there is, the case would go to the special courts.

PERES

Wage cuts protest

TEL AVIV — Talks on a wages and prices policy broke down yesterday after the labour federation described the offer as 'one-sided'.

The Histadrut central committee had already attacked the government plan for a cut in real wages by 40 per cent.

Histadrut leader Israel Kessar expressed anger at the Likud-Labour government for slashing subsidies on basic foods and raising petrol prices by 24 per cent while discussing a freeze programme.

Yesterday he said the proposals were 'unsatisfactory since they are unfair and favour employers. We will rejoin the talks when the government submits new proposals.'

The government plan calls for a wage drop of about 10-12 per cent for about six weeks.

The Israeli parliamentary committee has approved a 30-per-cent rise in the cost of electricity.

The latest electricity hike and the price rises are expected to fuel inflation, which is now running at 1,000 per cent a year.

Israeli political observers suggest that the Government of National Unity is breaking down after only six weeks in office.

Not more than a fifth of £800 million budget cuts decided in September have been implemented so far — and the Finance Ministry is talking of the need to slash another £800 million off public spending.

Arrests
over priest
kidnap

WARSAW — Three men, including an Interior Ministry official, have been detained in connection with the kidnapping of a priest who supports the banned trade union, Solidarity.

Polish police continued their search for Father Jerzy Popieluszko, as fears grew that he was already dead.

'Not having any signs of life from Father Popieluszko, we fear that a killing may have occurred in Poland of the kind exemplified in countries afflicted by the plague of terrorism,' said Roman Catholic Church primate, Cardinal Jozef Glemp.

The priest was abducted in the Torun area of northern Poland on the night of October 19.

A priest at the kidnapped man's church told crowds on Thursday night: 'Will this kidnapping not raise tension in our homeland and unleash national tragedy? We fear social conflict, with tragic consequences for our nation.'

Popieluszko, who was covered by a government amnesty for political opponents in July, is a fiery preacher who staged monthly 'masses for the homeland' after the declaration of martial law and the suppression of Solidarity in December 1981.

Fifteen Polish intellectuals have told Prime Minister General Jaruzelski in an open letter that, no matter who was responsible for the kidnapping, 'the odium for the case falls on the authorities'.

The signatories included film director Andrzej Wajda, opposition journalist Stefan Bratowski and Klemens Szaniawski, an academic whose election last May to the rectorship of Warsaw University was annulled by the government on the grounds that he was politically unreliable.

'The kidnapping of Father Popieluszko is evidence that it is high time to return to the road of authentic social agreement and the rebuilding of the rule of law,' they wrote.

Pinochet squirms

SANTIAGO — Faced with a General Strike next Tuesday President Augusto Pinochet yesterday announced wage increases for public sector workers and also improved benefits.

He said the measures would help people cope with price rises after last month's devaluation and a rise in import duties.

From next year some 250,000 public-sector workers would get pay rises to keep up with inflation, expected to be around 20 per cent.

Pinochet also announced rises in pensions and family allowances, the extension of

ARMY CAN'T QUELL
TOWNSHIP REVOLT

JOHANNESBURG — Defiant protests broke out again in the black South African 'township' of Sebokeng, 48 hours after 7,000 police and troops swamped the area and arrested hundreds.

Police fired a barrage of teargas, rubber bullets and birdshot at 'townships' across the country and protesters numbering up to 2,000 and more fought back by hurling stones.

Two black men were under guard in hospital yesterday, after they were injured in separate incidents, one near Johannesburg and one in the Eastern Cape.

More than 80 people have died in riots in black townships over the past three months. On Tuesday the police and army made 358 arrests in Sebokeng and two other townships in the country's biggest military crackdown.

townships said the military sloop would not break their opposition to the racist Pieter Botha regime.

They bitterly criticised soaring rents, the quality of black schooling and the worsening sub-standard living conditions under the apartheid system.

A black man hurt in a clash between police and rioters at Duduza, east of Johannesburg, on Thursday night was under guard in hospital yesterday. In Brighton, Eastern Cape, another man was found with birdshot wounds.

At Zwedi, police tear-gassed 1,000 black youths and adults. At Kwazakele, also in the Eastern Cape, a police police force that was sent there on the pretext of investigating a car crash were surrounded by about 2,000 youths who were dispersed with teargas and rubber bullets.

There were several other similar incidents throughout the Eastern Cape, where defiant youths continued to rally and fight hit-and-run battles with the police.

Clergyman Beyers Naude, released last month from a banning order that forbade newspapers to quote him, warned the white minority regime against using 'escalating violence' in an attempt to maintain its dominance.

Naude, an associate of the black pacifist anti-apartheid campaigner Bishop Tutu, said at a Cape Town rally:

'The Sebokeng 7,000 will become 20,000 for Soweto (Johannesburg's black townships), 200,000 in South Africa, and still we will not reach our goal.'

● Six black miners died and another person was injured on Thursday night in an accident in a colliery about 125 miles (200 kilometres) east of Johannesburg yesterday.

More than 10,000 miners have died in South African mines in the past 20 years.

POPE JOHN PAUL

Bulgaria provocation

ROME — Bulgarian airline official Sergei Antonov and seven other people were yesterday committed for trial on charges of conspiracy to assassinate Pope John Paul in May 1981.

Charged along with Antonov are two former officials of the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome and five Turks, among them Mehmet Ali Agca, already serving life imprisonment in Italy for shooting the Pope in St Peter's Square.

Only four of the accused are currently in detention in Italy. They are Antonov, Agca and Turks Omar Bagci and Musa Cerdar Celebi.

The two Bulgarian

Embassy Officials, Todor Ayvazov and Jelio Kolev Vassiliev, returned from Rome to Sofia before Italian authorities could ask for their diplomatic immunity to be lifted.

The two other accused are Turks Oral Celik, whose whereabouts are unknown and Bekir Celenk, who is living under surveillance by Bulgarian authorities in Sofia.

Yesterday's decision to prosecute, backed up by 1,243 pages of evidence, follows a 23-month investigation.

Agca, who was arrested minutes after the shooting, at first said he had acted alone. But he later told investigators he was part of a conspiracy to assassinate the Polish-born Pontiff.

No date has been set for the trial, at Rome Assize Court. The investigating magistrate described Agca, on whose evidence much of the case rests, as an 'atypical personality'. But he said there was independent evidence to back details supplied by Agca about his alleged meetings with the other accused.

He said there was evidence that a third shot had been fired at the Pope at the close of his weekly audience in the Vatican square on May 13, 1981, apart from the two known to have been fired by Agca.

Now Canada cuts
oil price

OSLO — The Canadian government has upset OPEC efforts to stem the collapse of the cartel's oil price structure by announcing plans to cut $1.33 off its light crude high-grade oil exports to the United States.

The announcement was a blow to the shuttle mission of Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani on behalf of the Organisation of Oil Exporting Countries.

Yamani is fighting an uphill battle to turn back the price increases of last week and to persuade OPEC and non-OPEC oil producers to cut production.

He met his Norwegian counterpart, Kaare Kristiansen, in Oslo yesterday to try to persuade him to reverse Norway's oil price cut of $1.50 last week that sent world stockmarkets into frenzy.

Britain followed with a $1.60 cut and Nigeria capped off the stampede by slashing $2 off its high-grade light.

Canada's oil price reduction from $28.80 to $27.47 was expected to be approved this week by the Tory Cabinet of Prime Minister Mulroney.

Controversy broke out in Oslo hours before Yamani's arrival, when the Energy Ministry and the state oil corporation contradicted each other on a likely December price rise.

An Energy Ministry hint of upping the price of Norway's Brent crude oil to $30 by December, 'as long as the market permits' was denied immediately.

A Statoil spokesman said no decision had been taken on a December increase. 'The ministry cannot dictate pricing policy to us,' he said.

Yamani has been unable to obtain a guarantee from Nigerian leader Major-General Muhammadu Buhari and was able to say in Geneva, en route to Oslo, only that a cancellation of the $2-cut was likely 'in the near future'.

The Saudi minister was accompanied by the OPEC deputy-general secretary, Fadhil al-Chaliba of Iraq.

Yamani returned to Geneva last night to make final arrangements for the OPEC crisis summit on Monday.

It was clear, however, that prices would continue to toboggan as a result of the slump conditions of the world oil market. Proposals to cut production will exacerbate a tenuous situation that has placed OPEC's survival in question.

Minister
sacked

ANKARA — Two top Turkish ministers, Interior Minister Ali Tahriyar and Finance Minister Vural Arikan, have resigned. The resignations follow a customs scandal in which Arikan has accused Tahriyar of failing to prevent maltreatment by police of senior Finance Ministry officials arrested last month.

The Finance Minister told parliament that 'certain dominant forces' were violating principles of the state of law.

The Finance Ministry officials are being held following investigations into alleged smuggling activities at the customs in the western province of Edirne.

Arikan accused the governor of Edirne, the police director general and the Interior Minister of violating the law during the investigation of the officials.

I protected right wing at conference – Heffer

BY JOHN SPENCER
our political correspondent

LABOUR'S former chairman Eric Heffer, who was ousted from the Shadow Cabinet, said yesterday that he had been the victim of a whispering campaign.

The 62-year-old MP for Walton, Liverpool, said the last year in the Shadow Cabinet had been an uneasy one for him. He had been given 'very little opportunity' to speak in the House of Commons.

'It is not true to say that I am bitterly disappointed by the result last night,' Heffer said. 'There has been a whispering campaign going on and, as far as I am concerned, I am delighted to be able to speak out on the issues I want to discuss.'

'The whispering campaign has been about my so-called bad chairmanship of the party conference. In fact, every right-wing speaker at the conference was protected by the chair and every MP who was a front-bench spokesman was called in the relevant debates. Suggestions to the contrary are quite untrue.'

Asked about his personal relationships with some of his Shadow Cabinet colleagues over the past 12 months, Heffer replied: 'It has been a very uneasy situation over the year.'

'But being a loyal member of the shadow cabinet, I have not gone out into the country and given any whisper whatsoever of some of the quite strong differences on some very serious problems like the miners' dispute and so on. It has not been the easiest of years.'

'There has been a very clear shift to the right within the parliamentary leadership. The Solidarity Group put up 15 candidates and ten of them were elected.'

'This is not a reflection of the position in the country because when this group puts up candidates for the national executive they cannot even get near electing one of them.'

Heffer warned there would now be attempts by right-wingers in the Shadow Cabinet to trim some of the policies carried by the party conference.

'I welcome the opportunity, therefore, of being on the back benches again. I will now be able to participate in debates on unemployment, defence, and a wide range of subjects, which I have not been able to do over the past year.'

'I was confined to one subject, housing, and given very little opportunity to speak in the House of Commons, so I welcome this opportunity.'

Mitterrand makes excuses for Embassy bomb scare

PRESIDENT Mitterrand said yesterday that the explosives incident at the French ambassador's residence — 'this unfortunate misunderstanding' — should be kept in perspective.

The French president, speaking on the last day of his four-day state visit, said: 'We must keep a proper sense of proportion.'

'That is a particular British quality — keep things in the right perspective. We must keep a proper sense of proportion.'

There is still confusion over which security service set the other up in the bizarre incident.

Grounds

Explosives were planted in the grounds of the ambassador's residence, and British police called in to see if they could find it.

Mitterrand said the bomb disposal expert who planted the explosives was not part of French security, but part of a ministerial department.

'He had no evil intent. His job is to defuse not to plant bombs. To avoid misunderstanding, the way of proceeding is to adhere to regulations of the countries to which we are the guests. That is all I can say.'

'WOG' PHRASE 'NOT RACIST'

SECRETARY Marion de Souza was shocked when she heard one of her bosses at the Automobile Association say 'give some typing to the wog'. But the Employment Appeal Tribunal in London has ruled that she has no grounds for a race discrimination complaint.

The EAT's decision could have 'disastrous results', said one community relations worker after the case. 'Racial abuse is far too common.'

The ruling was given by the EAT in dismissing an appeal by Mrs De Souza, 45, of Kempshott, Basingstoke, against the AA.

She had sought to overturn a Southampton Industrial Tribunal decision rejecting her claim of racial discrimination, arising largely from her complaint that her job had not been re-assessed after she had to work for two managers.

One of the two men had used the 'wog' phrase, but the Southampton hearing had found there was no racial discrimination in the AA's decision not to re-evaluate her job.

At the EAT on Thursday, it was argued for Mrs de Souza that the 'wog' phrase constituted a 'detriment' within the 1976 Race Relations Act.

SAYS JUDGE

EAT chairman Mr Justice Popplewell said it was impossible to find that the use of the phrase by one manager to another, even if overheard by Mrs de Souza, deplorable though it was, could properly be described as a detriment.

Ruling

A spokesman for the Commission for Racial Equality said they were anxiously awaiting a copy of the judgement, but would not comment on the EAT ruling until then.

Mrs de Souza is expected to apply to the Court of Appeal in the hope of re-opening her case there.

Hospital action body formed

MEMBERS of the health union COHSE at Friern Barnet mental hospital, north London, have formed an Action/Occupation Committee in response to plans to close the hospital within ten years.

The new committee is making a special appeal to the local community and labour and trade union movement for support in its fight to defend jobs, patient care and the National Health Service.

A statement from the branch said: 'With ever-increasing cuts in the NHS, the union feels that the hospital will be forced to close well before the time limit given.'

'Since the proposed closure was announced last year, plans have gone ahead to make the old Highgate wing of the Whittington Hospital ready to receive geriatric patients from Friern, plans are also being made to move old and chronic patients to the National Temperance Hospital.'

'The union rejects these plans and do not look upon them as upholding the principle of "Community Care"! There are moves to empty the Friern site and close the hospital as soon as possible.'

THE MINERS' STRUGGLE

As miners march in Motherwell...

RAVENSCRAIG COAL STOCKS MOUNT

RAVENSCRAIG steelworks, bulging with stockpiles of scab coal, will be on the skyline today as Scottish miners and other trade unionists march in their thousands through Motherwell.

The marchers can bitterly reflect on the fact that this Lanarkshire steeltown was the focus of the most treacherous deal yet aimed at isolating the NUM.

For that deal — the same one that led to the national docks strike ending — was drawn up in collaboration with British Steel, port employers and the ISTC steel union by Hugh Wyper, Scottish regional secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, and James Milne, general secretary of the Scottish TUC.

Wyper and Milne, both senior figures in the Communist Party, negotiated this notorious mid-September agreement intended to kill two birds with one stone... send the dockers back to work, and lift the 'black' on Ravenscraig's coal supplies.

Delivery

Under the terms they drew up, trade union blessing was to be given to delivery by rail of 18,000 tonnes of coal a week to the plant.

This figure, it was agreed, should rise to 20,000 tonnes after four weeks, and to 22,500 early in November.

FROM CHRIS CORRIGAN

'That's more than Ravenscraig was getting before the miners' strike began!', one rail union leader protested at the time.

The plan by Stalinists Wyper and Milne was stitched together behind the backs of the NUM. It was also behind the backs of the ASLEF and NUR rail unions, which have consistently refused to carry scab coal, and whose Lanarkshire members are being regularly sent home without pay for taking this stand.

NUM president Arthur Scargill, on Wednesday September 19, speaking in London, promptly denounced the Glasgow agreement.

Backed by the rail unions, the NUM prevented the coal quota part of the deal from being implemented. But the docks strike, which was initiated in support of the miners, was already being called off, and the scabbing operation from Hunterston got a major boost.

Issue

This is no dead issue. The lessons from it are politically decisive for the miners and the whole working class.

At the same time that it is clear that the NUM cannot win on its own against the entire Thatcher state, it is equally clear there are trade union leaders at national and regional level who profess in words to support the miners, but in practice will stop at nothing to keep the NUM fighting alone.

SCAB coal almost as far as you can see... the mountainous stocks at Ravenscraig steelworks, and they are still growing

And what the Wyper-Milne plan yet again confirmed was that it is counter-revolutionary Stalinism that does the dirty work on behalf of the Labour and TUC right-wing.

This is the issue at Ravenscraig, which Wyper, Milne and their collaborators are adamant must continue at high-level production — even after eight months of the miners' strike!

Only by being brought out on strike with the miners can steelmen and other workers defend their jobs.

This is proved by the loss of 1,000 Ravenscraig jobs as part of the proposed closure of the plant's finishing end. With just steel-making left, the entire works and all 5,000 employed there would be ripe for the axe.

Levels

Stockpiles at Ravenscraig are already around the quarter-of-a-million-tonnes mark. Though British Steel and steel union leaders refuse to divulge official figures either on coal stocks or on steel production levels.

Wyper and Milne have Stalinist counterparts in the Scottish area leadership of the NUM, notably vice-president George Bolton, national chairman of the Communist Party, and Mick McGahey, also a leading CP member.

It was Bolton who, in the CP's journal 'Marxism Today' in a verbatim report of a discussion on the NUM struggle, chaired by a senior 'Financial Times' journalist, declared: 'We won't finish up by defeating the government, that's for sure.'

Behind this cringing comment by Bolton is Stalinist policy: that is, for a NUM climb-down through the state-controlled ACAS, and against any other section of the working class being mobilised in strike action alongside the miners.

● THESE questions are dealt with in 'Scottish Communist Party leaders and the miners' strike,' a detailed account and analysis in the October issue of 'Labour Review' (65p).

Labourites' 'coal plan' will destroy Australian jobs

From TERRI CAVANAGH in Wollongong and BOB BUHLER in Newcastle

THE AUSTRALIAN Labour government is preparing a corporatist 'Coal Industry Plan' that will destroy jobs and trade union conditions in the mining industry.

Prime Minister Bob Hawke's plan is part of his corporatist Accord with the Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU) and the Labour Party (ALP).

At least 21,000 jobs have been wiped out under Hawke's 'Steel Industry Plan', while BHP, the steel and mining giant, has declared a profit of $622 million.

The 'Button Car Plan', named after senior Cabinet minister John Button, has poised the axe over 30,000 car industry jobs.

The trade union bureaucracy has become the policeman of Hawke's pro-capitalist policies under the so-called ALP-ACTU Accord.

Miners Federation officials early this month defended the 'plan' for the coal industry by welcoming a fraudulent assertion by Hawke and Energy and Resources Minister Peter Walsh that 600 jobs in the Wollongong coal region, south of Sydney, New South Wales, would be saved.

While the federation's officials were meeting the two Labour axemen in Canberra, angry miners, their wives and families gathered outside a meeting of coal owners, branch trade union and City Council leaders in Wollongong.

They made it clear they opposed, and were prepared to fight against, the Kembla Coal and Coke's (KCC) anti-union demands.

The trade union and civic leaders crawled to the negotiating table in the slump-hit city under an arrogant KCC ultimatum that unless the government agreed its demands, it would start issuing 500 sack notices this week.

At the same time, in the northern NSW city of Newcastle, BHP management at Lambton longwall colliery, told surprised miners that half of them were to be transferred to other BHP collieries.

Lambton being the only longwall colliery in the area, the transfers meant the uprooting of families whose traditional ties with the steelmaking and coalmining region stretch back several generations.

BHP, responsible for the destruction of more than 30,000 steel and coal jobs in the past few years, has been closing down pits after deliberately running them down.

'Nowhere are the class antagonisms more sharply defined than between the miners and the ruling class. They run deeper than any mine shaft in the country.'

Crucial to understanding the struggle of the miners today, this pamphlet analyses the decline of the coal industry in the course of this century. Tracing the history of the struggle against closures and increased exploitation, it shows why only socialism can solve the crisis, and examines the problems of leadership in the miners' union.

A pro-Tory Shadow Cabinet

THE SHADOW Cabinet is one of the minor accessories of the British capitalist constitution. It is the means by which Labour MPs in opposition are groomed and flattered for a possible future role as ministers in H.M. government.

Its very existence proclaims Labour's subordination to the rules laid down by the enemy class. Its purpose is not to rouse the masses against the government of the day but to train the leading Labour politicians as functionaries of the capitalist state.

Fifteen of its members are elected by the Parliamentary Labour Party, a deeply reactionary body of reformist careerists and place-seekers which can be relied on never to rock the boat.

Even then, it is entirely up to the party leader to allocate their portfolios. Once they get the job, though, their pronouncements carry considerable weight, certainly more than the party conference, whose decisions can be and frequently are overridden.

The rest of the shadow team owe their positions entirely to the party leader's patronage. He appoints them and he can dismiss them at whim. This is enough to ensure that most of them toe the line rigorously in the hope of getting ministerial office in a future Labour government.

As the representatives of H.M. Loyal Opposition, they are fed with sufficient scraps of information by their Tory counterparts to ensure that they are thoroughly compromised.

The Falklands war provided a classic example. Shadow ministers were told on the Old Boy network that the Task Force was carrying nuclear weapons. This meant they were effectively silenced and would have been unable to attack Thatcher over the war, even if they had wanted to.

The Shadow Cabinet is a grisly parody of the real thing. Its members are governed by a version of collective responsibility which prevents them from speaking in the Commons on subjects outside the boundaries of 'their' department.

It comes as no surprise that this system has produced a Shadow Cabinet in the image of Neil Kinnock — a group in which right-wingers Gerald Kaufman and Denis Healey top the poll.

Other noteworthy figures on the elected slate are Stan Orme, Kinnock's leg-man in his treacherous attempts to undermine the National Union of Mineworkers, John Prescott, who organised the dockers' return to work and the delivery of blacked coal to Ravenscraig, and John Cunningham, who has fought against all efforts to resist Tory attacks on local councils by breaking the law.

Tony Benn's efforts to regain a place on the Shadow Cabinet were frustrated, as were those of Eric Heffer, chairman at this year's party conference. The 'Morning Star', the Communist Party and the various revisionist groups will undoubtedly see this as a major setback.

This is because they are all dedicated to the 'parliamentary road to socialism' in which everything must be subordinated to the 'winning' of the next election.

And this reactionary objective is placed before the working class while Thatcher's Bonapartist regime, through its police and its judiciary, is systematically outlawing the trade unions whose interests the Labour Party was formed to represent in parliament.

The more the Tories press on with their assault against the unions and their drive towards police-military dictatorship, the more the Parliamentary Labour Party moves to the right and turns its back on the problems of the working class.

Nothing could more eloquently express the urgency of building the Workers Revolutionary Party to lead the fight for the destruction of the Bonapartist state, the exposure of its treacherous reformist and Stalinist friends and the establishment of a Workers Revolutionary Government.

NUM president Arthur Scargill had three hours of talks with TUC general secretary Norman Willis yesterday.

SCARGILL

He said later: 'The TUC has said it will continue to do all it can to make sure that the decisions of the Trades Union Congress are put into practical effect.'

'The TUC supports the stand being taken by the NUM at the ACAS talks, and has indicated it will do all it can to translate into positive action the decisions of Congress.'

Scargill added that a date for resumed talks with the Coal Board at ACAS will be fixed 'very quickly'. He said the talks would probably be next week.

Ten hours of talks on Thursday left both sides as far apart as ever.

THE BLOCKADE of open-cast coal sites will continue, the Transport and General Workers' Union said last night. The decision followed a four-hour meeting between the union and employers over union claims for job protection and increased redundancy pay.

Sheffield Labour MP Bill Nichie addressing the meeting

STRIKE TO BACK THE MINERS MUST ACT

Call from Sheffield rally

CALLS for the organisation of General Strike action in support of the miners were applauded by over 500 striking miners and trade unionists at a rally yesterday in Sheffield.

The emergency meeting, called by the Sheffield trades council, followed the seizure of the NUM's funds by the High Court on Thursday.

The trades council executive, which met shortly after the High Court decision, has called on local trade unionists to organise strike action in support of the miners.

Terry McCabe, of the Doncaster branch of the building workers' union UCATT, won warm applause when he said the attack on the NUM must be met with the whole weight of the trade union movement.

He said many trade unionists had correctly said the sequestration of NUM assets was an attack not only on miners but on the whole trade union movement.

But the only conclusion that could be drawn was that the whole trade union movement must immediately organise

BY BEN RUDDER

General Strike action to defend its organisations.

This meant the practical preparation for a General Strike, not only with pickets at mines, but with visits at factories and with miners and trade unionists travelling to factories and workplaces throughout the country to urgently raise the need for such action.

Young Houghton Main miner Terry Wilkinson repeated the call throughout the meeting from the floor.

Anne Scargill, wife of the NUM president, told the rally that the strike must continue until victory. She said the union must stand firm.

Dave Anderson, a Durham miner who travelled down with colleagues from the area to defend the Sheffield headquarters of the NUM, said that workers contributing to children's toy collections for Christmas should be ready to give more presents at Easter time next year.

He said the miners were prepared to continue their fight for as long as it took to gain their jobs and their demands.

Trades council president Blanche Flannery said the government had tried to starve the miners and now they were taking the union's funds.

'They have done everything they can — but still the strike is solid,' she said to applause.

She told other trade unionists: 'Get your union to act positively now — and you know what I mean by that'.

Sheffield Labour MP, Bill Michie, said the union and the mining communities were not going to capitulate, and that was the message which must be taken out to every worker in the country.

Other speakers included Ernie Walker, AUEW engineering union district secretary, and a speaker from the Sheffield Centre Against Unemployment, who announced to cheers that workers at the Shanklows plant had stopped work for the afternoon over the sequestration of NUM assets.

● EARLIER in the day, over 2,000 pickets were at Woolley colliery where police horses and dogs were on standby. But there was no provocative charge either there or at Kiveton Park, where over 1,000 pickets assembled, as had happened earlier in the week.

DIDCOT PICKETS FIRM

MINERS from South Wales have mounted a 24-hour picket every day of the week at the giant Didcot power station near Oxford since the end of March and after a month they succeeded in forcing its closure. Coal trains were refusing to deliver and the coal trucks respected the picket lines.

Recently, at great expense, the boilers at the power station have been converted to burn oil. In spite of the pickets the oil tankers — most of them driven by non-union men — have sped into the station and ignored the pickets.

The turbines at the power station have only just started turning again, two weeks ago, and they are not yet producing enough power to be fed into the grid. They are expected to start shortly.

Pickets, like those above from Merthyr Vale, are determined to stop the deliveries in line with TUC policy. They sleep in the makeshift hut at the entrance and are well looked after by some of the local people.

More legal threats against NUM

BY OUR OWN REPORTER

AS sequestrators began the work of seizing the total assets of the NUM, there was the threat of more legal action against the union.

Four South Wales would-be strike-breakers are to take action against the NUM claiming compensation for loss of earnings.

The men are being backed by the 'National Working Miners Committee' and advised by Ken Foulstone and Bob Taylor, whose legal action has led to the sequestration.

Cash for the cases has also been provided by the anti-union group led by 'Silver Birch' and a number of South Wales companies, including several haulage firms.

Meanwhile the four chartered accountants appointed by the High Court have started to grab NUM funds.

Banks have been told to freeze union accounts, report the balances held, place such sums on deposit or transfer them to the sequestrators' account.

The NUM will be unable to continue to pay wages, pensions or bills.

The funds were ordered to be seized on Thursday following the NUM's refusal to pay a £200,000 contempt of court fine.

If the sequestrators believe their task is being obstructed, they may apply for the imprisonment of any of the union's executive and officers.

They could also order the bankruptcy of individuals at the top of the union.

Brian Larkins, Peter Padmore, Tim Houlst and Peter Barrows are working from Price Waterhouse's 11-storey offices near London Bridge. All are partners in the top accountancy firm.

Larkins, one of the top experts on insolvency, collected the £50,000 fine that Welsh miners refused to pay for contempt in August.

He performed a similar function when the National Graphical Association had its funds seized for contempt of court in the 'Stockport Messenger' dispute last year.

The NUM has cash at the bank and in hand amounting to £3 million and quoted investments worth just under £6 million, according to official details of its finances.

If the sequestrators are denied access to property which they want to examine they have to apply to the court, which would probably result in the under-sheriff being ordered to act.

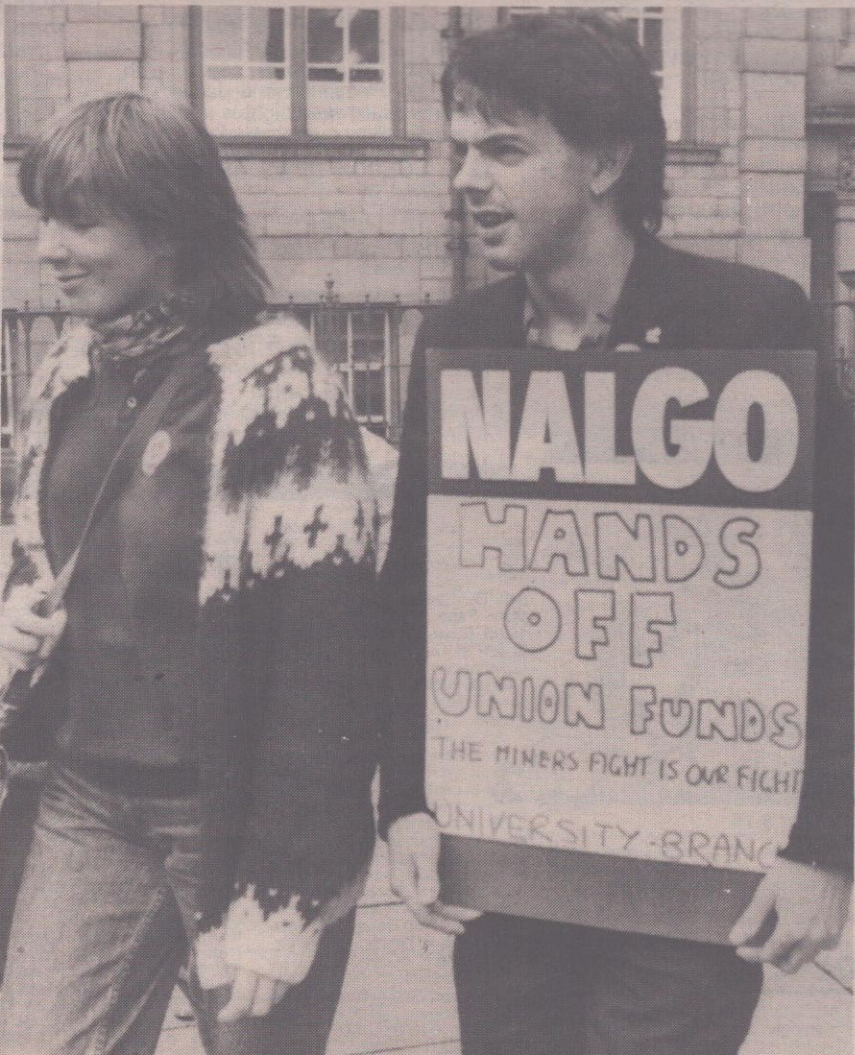

LIBYAN VISIT

TRIPOLI — Libyan leader Colonel Muammar Gaddafi has been briefed on the British miners' strike by a member of the NUM.

Gaddafi told the envoy, whose name or position in the union were not revealed, that he had sympathy for workers 'suffering exploitation' by the ruling British regime.

'Libya's solidarity is with the striking workers in their struggle to obtain their legal rights,' Gaddafi told the NUM member.

The miner said strikers were suffering from 'daily arbitrary actions by the Conservative government of Thatcher'.

Trade union banners outside the meeting hall spelled out their opposition to the seizure of the NUM's funds

TENANTS' 110 QUESTIONS ON HOUSING SAFETY

TENANTS living in Bison system-built homes yesterday presented the government with a list of 110 questions about the safety and structure of their homes.

The questions have been prepared by the National Association of Bison Tenants (NABT), who were meeting yesterday with officials of the Department of the Environment, to ask what action the government was taking to ensure that their homes were properly checked for safety.

Faults

Housing Minister Ian Gow has already admitted that 'every single Bison block' needed to be examined for faults.

Norma Sinclair, a NABT spokeswoman, said: 'We want the government to ensure that every house and flat is checked and is checked thoroughly.' Tenants had been greatly concerned by the government's admission in July that local authority safety checks were patchy and inadequate.

Officials

The tenants will also be taking up with the officials the suggestion by the Minister of Housing that the Building Research Establishment could be called in to advise on methods for remedying faults.

A call for the Building Research Establishment to investigate Bison was backed by over 70 MPs of all parties earlier this year.

Norma Sinclair said: 'Bison tenants are concerned that councils in one area may try to remedy faults using methods that have already failed elsewhere.' She said that at least seven authorities have already decided to demolish their Bison dwellings.

The NABT have also been working with Shelter, the National Campaign for the Homeless, to secure the release of reports of tests already carried out on Bison, and they were asking officials at the meeting yesterday to agree to the publication of a report prepared for the Department of the Environment's New Towns Directorate.

Molins shut Derry factory

MORE than 400 workers at the engineering firm of Molins in Derry in the north of Ireland lost their jobs yesterday when the company announced a surprise shutdown.

The firm's factory on the Maydown industrial estate makes components for the tobacco industry. It was due to close last night — less than 12 hours after the 430 workers were told of the decision.

The closure was completely unexpected and after the announcement workers threatened to stage a sit-in.

Derry has an unemployment rate of just over 30 per cent. The shutdown was part of a national cutback by Molins.

Molins, who make cigarette machines, is one of Derry's main employers, opened in the city 18 years ago.

Shop steward Colman McFeeley said: 'We appreciated the company were going through certain difficulties, but the workforce has taken the decision very badly and will react.'

Grant

'At this stage we are trying to find out why a company, having received considerable grant aid over the years, has failed to maintain jobs. It is a disgrace and we will now attempt to persuade our members to do something about it.'

Pat McCartan, area secretary of APEX, the union which represents white collar workers at the factory, said the Tory government and the company had not done enough to save the jobs.

'I think it is a disgrace the way the workforce has been treated and there was clearly some collusion between the company and the Industry Minister to remove the statutory entitlement of a 90-day period during which time efforts could be made to keep the factory open.'

Apart from Derry, Molins has announced sackings in England at High Wycombe, Orpington and Milton Keynes.

Tebbit moves hospital

EMPLOYMENT Secretary Norman Tebbit and his wife Margaret were flown to Stoke Mandeville hospital in Buckinghamshire from Brighton yesterday.

She was paralysed and her husband badly injured in the bombing of the Grand Hotel by the Provisional IRA two weeks ago.

Tebbit, 53, was trapped for four hours amid tons of rubble after the explosion. He and his wife had fallen at least three floors in the blast.

Winning Post

River Drummer to claim victory

ANGLO-FRENCH relations, the subject of much recent publicity, will be in the spotlight again at DONCASTER today when cross-Channel raider River Drummer (3.00) can foil a strong home team in the £32,500-added William Hill Futurity Stakes.

Palace Music became the first French horse to win in England for 17 months when he won the Dubai Champion Stakes at Newmarket last Saturday and that victory must have given River Drummer's trainer Francois Boutin great encouragement.

Last year, Boutin and jockey Cash Asmusen were foiled in this race by an English runner. Their representative Mendez started a hot 11-8 favourite, but could not cope with the late flourish of Guy Harwood's Alpha-batim.

Today, Boutin and Asmussen can get their revenge. The one they have to beat is Harwood's Sabona, heavily supported in ante-post markets.

Sabona, an easy Kempton winner on his debut, looked unlucky not to retain his 100 per cent record at Newbury last month.

Lucky Dutch (2.30) was very impressive when winning at Newmarket last Friday and it may pay to side with Nick Easterby's in-form five-year-old in the competitive Solaglas Energy Savers Handicap.

Richards
revives
Windies

VIV RICHARDS hit 80 runs to lead a recovery for the West Indies against South Australia in Adelaide yesterday and the Caribbean's pacemen collected quick wickets to thwart the Australians chances of a first innings lead.

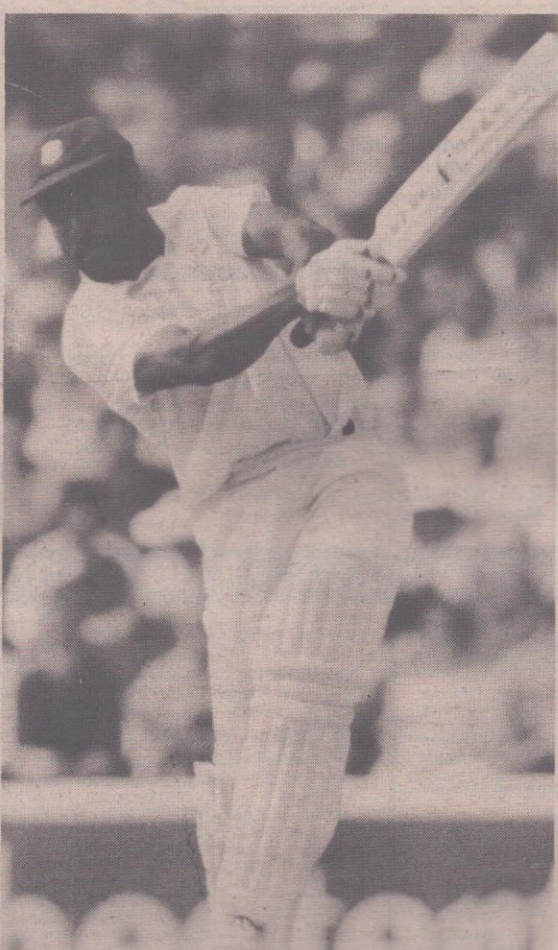

Top scorer Richards lifted the tourists from 107 for five to 242 all out, while Malcolm Marshall and Courtney Walsh both captured two wickets as the home side were reduced to 97 for four at the close of the first day of the four-day match.

Pitch

The West Indians, who won the toss, were bowled out by tea on a typically excellent Adelaide Oval pitch after being surprised by the pace and swing of the home attack, spearheaded by paceman Ian Carmichael.

Carmichael took three for 72 and broke the back of the West Indies batting by snapping up Gordon Greenidge for 26, Larry Gomes for 16 and captain Clive Lloyd for seven after fellow paceman Roddy McCurdy made the initial breakthrough by dismissing Desmond Haynes for seven.

Carmichael's spell had the West Indians reeling at 86 for four, and they plunged to 107 for five when Jeff Dujon was run out for 10.

VIV RICHARDS . . . Hitting the runs for the West Indies yesterday

Richards, whose innings was not lacking in luck, lasted two hours at the crease and made nine boundaries. The best spell for the tourists was the 80-run partnership shared between Richards and paceman Marshall for the sixth wicket.

Marshall, who scored 35, followed up in the final session of the day by firing out former Test opener Andrew Hilditch and current Australian wicketkeeper Wayne Phillips for two and nought respectively.

Walsh removed opener Bishop and captain David Hookes as the South Australians subsided to 64 for four at one stage.

NAZAR HITS

MUDASSAR NAZAR inspired a fighting Pakistan reply with an accomplished unbeaten 112 in the second Test against India at Faisalabad yesterday.

Chasing a massive Indian first innings of 500, Pakistan finished the third day on 216 for one with Qasim Omar on 35 in an undefeated second wicket stand of 75.

Mudassar showed his liking for the Indian bowling which was badly weakened when an injury to paceman Kapil Dev forced him to leave the field early.

Mudassar registered his sixth century against India and seventh overall in a 40-Test career shortly before the close by driving off-spinner Shivlal Yadav for his 14th four.

The Pakistani opener became the third century-maker of the match, after India's Sandip Patil and Ravi Shastri, on a pitch which had a history of big scores.

Earlier Pakistan had taken six overs to bowl out India after they resumed overnight at 484 for nine.

India's last wicket fell to Pakistan's other hero of the day, wrist spinner Abdul Qadir, who captured his 100th Test wicket in the process.

Figures

The victim was Yadav, caught by Salim Malik at forward short leg for 29. Qadir finished with four for 104 while pace bowler Azeem Hafeez had figures of four for 137.

Mudassar and Mohsin Khan gave their side a rousing start with a 141 opening partnership. The first 100 came in 137 minutes before Gavaskar brought on spinners Shastri and Yadav to tie down the scoring.

Indian hopes of an early breakthrough were dashed when Kapil Dev had to leave the pitch with a sprained back muscle after sending down five overs. He didn't reappear during the day.

The touring side finally priced out Mohsin after a fluent 59, containing nine fours in a 189-minute innings. He fell to Sharma in the bowler's second spell, holding out to Gavaskar at mid-wicket.

With two days left after today's rest day, the match looks headed for a draw unless Pakistan collapse dramatically — an unlikely prospect on an ideal batting strip and with India weakened in their attack.

● PAKISTAN'S controversial paceman Sarfraz Nawaz has launched a verbal broadside at India's captain Sunil Gavaskar, who earlier this week criticised the umpires in charge of the first Test which ended in a draw in Lahore last Monday.

Sarfraz, who neither played in the Lahore Test nor is included in the side facing the tourists at Faisalabad after returning unwell from playing in the West Indies earlier this month, said India's captain was behaving like a 'schoolboy'.

Sarfraz claimed Gavaskar was not receiving co-operation from his teammates, especially deposed captain Kapil Dev, and added the Indian captain's remarks against the umpires was an act of frustration.

EVERTON, the born-again giants of Goodison, bid for their highest League placing in five seasons when they take on Manchester United at Goodison Park this afternoon.

Victory would send them leapfrogging over their visitors into third place, and should Sheffield Wednesday slip up at Coventry, the Merseysiders would hold second place for the first time since March 1979.

'It's certainly nicer to be up among the front runners than down among the strugglers, but though everyone is getting excited about the possibilities, we are not getting carried away,' says manager Howard Kendall.

Even in the middle of last season's gloom, when the threat of relegation almost cost Kendall his job, Everton managed to beat United and today's visitors have yet to win a game at Goodison Park under Ron Atkinson.

'These sort of records make interesting reading but they count for nothing on the day,' Kendall added. 'We are going well and our form just now means we don't fear any team, but there's a long haul ahead.'

BY MATTHEW NUGENT

Kevin Sheedy returns to the left flank after missing six matches through injury. Alan Garper drops out and Everton's other recent casualty, striker Andy Gray, wears the No.12 shirt.

The only other change from Wednesday's fine

'The European scene is proving a refreshing change for the team,' says Kendall.

'It adds to the players' confidence and has to be good for you — providing you don't get injuries.'

Check

Manchester United escaped injuries in the midweek European trip to Holland, but John Gidman and Jesper Olsen returned with stomach upsets. Gidman is definitely ruled out and Olsen faces a late fitness check.

Experienced midfielder Arnold Muhren stands by for Olsen and Gidman's absence could mean a re-shuffle with Kevin Moran at right back and Gordon McQueen re-called at centre-half.

Frank Stapleton will be on the sub's bench as Mark Hughes and Alan Brazil keep the striking roles.

Arsehal, four points clear at the top, expect to face West Ham without their England strike force of Paul Mariner and Tony Woodcock.

Strain

Mariner is definitely out with a hamstring strain. Woodcock faces a late test on an injured ankle but has only a 50-50 chance of lining up at Upton Park.

Charlie Nicholas will probably be pushed forward to join young Ian Allinson up front, with Brian McDermott drafted into midfield.

Ever-present central defender Tommy Caton is struggling to overcome a hamstring injury received in training, but Graham Rix should recover from an Achilles injury.

'A fairly injury-free run has helped us get to the top. Now we must see whether we have the back-up strength in the squad to maintain our place,' says manager Don Howe.

Second-placed Sheffield Wednesday, on an eight game unbeaten run, will visit Coventry with the side which thrashed Leicester 5-0 last Saturday.

Coventry will have leading scorer Terry Gibson back in their attack after a virus infection.

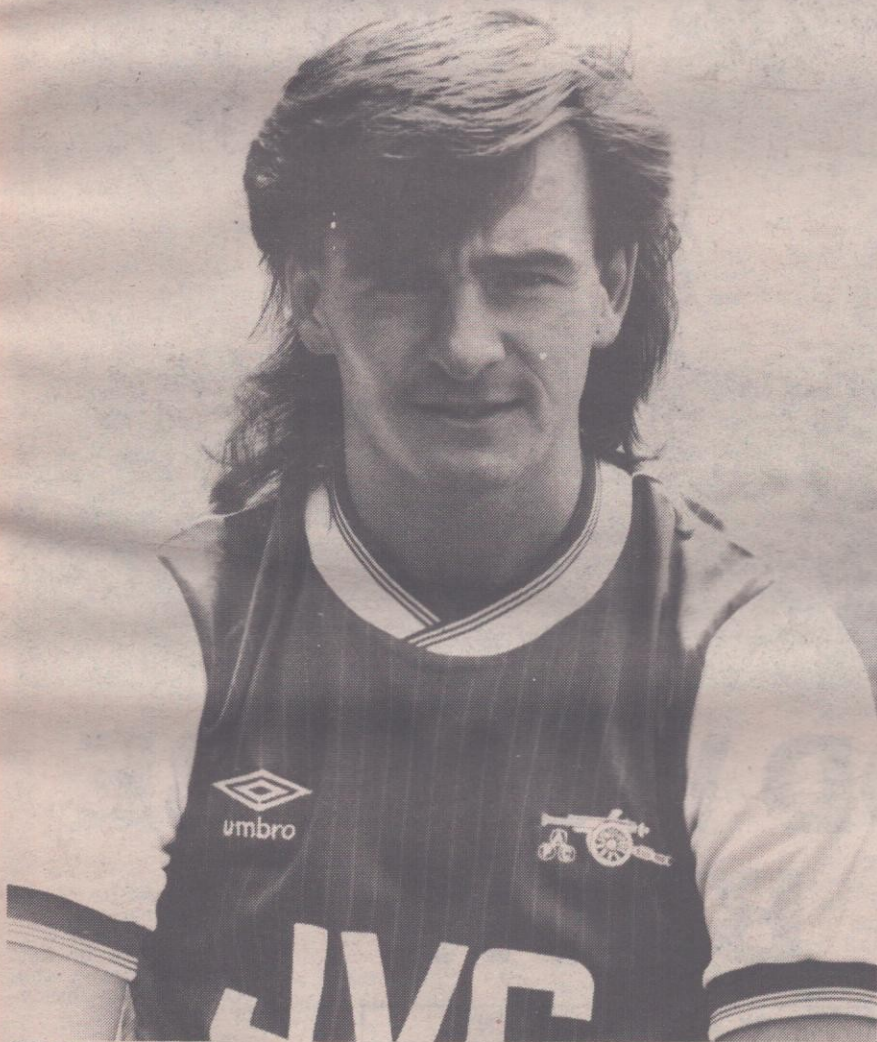

It's comeback day, too, for Gibson's one-time Tottenham teammate Glenn Hoddle — he displaces Mick Hazard in Spurs' midfield against Stoke — his first League start since last February.

Clive Allen, who like Hoddle proved his fitness with a substitute appearance against Bruges on Wednesday, regains his place from Garth Crooks.

Bottom-of-the-table Stoke are strengthened by the return of Alan Hudson. The former England

CHARLIE NICHOLAS may very well have a striking role against West Ham this afternoon

Rangers bid for League Cup cheer

IT'S the Skol Cup Final at Hampden tomorrow but Strathclyde police have nevertheless promised rigorous enforcement of the prohibition of the carrying or consumption of alcohol.

Rangers fans will therefore sink a 'wee half' before reaching the ground if wanting to deaden apprehension at this Sunday afternoon clash against Dundee United.

Winning the Skol trophy, the old Scottish League Cup, is a desperately-needed affair at Ibrox. A recent string of dismal Premier League displays, followed by Wednesday night's 3-0 defeat by Inter-Milan in the San Siro stadium, have combined to cast gloom at the club in what was supposed to be the 'big comeback' season.

Although Rangers' boss Jock Wallace pledges his side will have a 'real go' at Inter Milan in the return leg, their hopes of retaining an interest in the UEFA Cup are almost zero.

The European fortunes of Skol rivals Dundee United, however, soared on Wednesday with their notable 2-1 away win over Linz of Austria.

That first-leg victory may well reverse the pattern at Glasgow cup finals, when 'outsiders' like United have often been victims of jitters. This time the Taysiders arrive with a wet sail.

Wallace has already conceded his biggest task is lifting his players for tomorrow's match. And a get-away-from-it-all session at Turnberry yesterday was an attempt to do just that.

But the chief factor tomorrow probably lies in the hands of United and manager Jim McLean and their ability to overcome some astounding inconsistency.

To date, United have won seven of their eight midweek cup-ties in both the UEFA and Skol competitions. Conversely, 11 Saturday Premier League outings have yielded just four wins.

TERRY GIBSON

midfielder has been out for a month through illness. Sammy McIlroy misses the game, however, because of an ankle injury.

Visit

Watford hope to have central defender Steve Terry back after injury for the visit of Newcastle, but fellow strugglers Leicester continue to have problems.

Goalkeeper Mark Wallington misses the visit of Aston Villa because of sciatica. Ian Andrews, 19, plays only his fourth League game, but manager Gordon Milne still drops Bob Hazell, Andy Peake and Alan Smith.

TENNIS

Ruzici routed by Russell

THERE will be a new name on the winners' scroll when the Pretty Polly tennis Classic final is played out at the Brighton Centre tomorrow.

Indeed the final will be fought out by two players who have never reached this stage of the tournament before following yesterday afternoon's play in Brighton.

Rumania's Virginia Ruzici, who won the inaugural tournament back in 1978, was bundled out yesterday by American Joanne Russell, 6-1, 6-1.

Ruzici started confidently enough rushing into a 40-love lead after capturing the first game. After that, however, she could do little right and Russell played herself into the semi-finals in just 54 minutes.

By the fifth game of the second set, when she trailed 1-4, Ruzici became so frustrated at Russell's clear-cut superiority that she flung her racket angrily across court and was given a public warning.

Jo Durie, the 24-year-old British No.1, showed touches of her old aggressive form, but never in sufficient quantities to carry her past West Germany's Sylvia Hanika.

Durie, beaten in the final last year by Chris Evert-Lloyd and No.3 seed, went down 6-4, 6-4 to left-hander Hanika who is the seventh seed.

Durie appeared to be escaping from defeat when she played her way back into the match and took a 4-1 lead in the second set.

But while Durie played reasonably well, her opponent was just that little better and gradually the 24-year-old West German No.1 began to swing the match her way once more and ended well on top after taking the last five games.

YOUR WEEKEND SOCCER COLOUR

PAUL BRACEWELL (right) will be in action for Everton when they take on Manchester United at Goodison Park this afternoon. Bracewell, who joined the Merseysiders from Sunderland during the summer, scored the vital goal in his club's 1-0 victory in Czechoslovakia in midweek. He will be hoping to repeat that feat this afternoon.

DOUG ROUGVIE (below), Chelsea's rugged full back, will be hoping to keep Ipswich Town's attack at bay when they meet at Stamford Bridge this afternoon. The tall Scot joined the London club from Aberdeen during the summer.

BUDD WON'T BE BACK

BY MATTHEW NUGENT

STORIES circulating in South Africa yesterday claim that athlete Zola Budd will not return to Britain again.

Budd, whisked into this country last March and given a British passport in record time so she could circumvent the ban on racist South Africa and run in the Olympic Games for Great Britain, was due to return here next week.

The 18-year-old athlete from just outside Bloemfontein, heart of the racist-Afrikaaner country, was expected in London by November 6 to sign a 'new contract' with her 'mentors' the Daily Mail.

But yesterday two of South Africa's leading daily newspapers, 'The Citizen' and 'The Star' ran banner headlines across their front pages stating that Budd had decided to remain in the racist state.

'Zola Has Decided: She's Staying In SA', The Star headlined it's front page while The Citizen said: 'Zola Won't Go Back To Britain'.

Budd was smuggled into Britain by the 'Daily Mail' last March and within days had received a British passport. She was later chosen for the Olympic Games where she was involved in the most controversial race in Los Angeles, tripping the American star May Decker in the 3,000 metres.

Immediately after the Games, Budd returned to South Africa and said she would return to Britain after her brother's wedding in August.

Since then, however, it has become clear that Budd would not return here, despite several approaches from British athletic officials and staff from the Daily Mail.
